THEATRICAL OFFERINGS PLOT WOVEN ABOUT WAR IN EUROPE

"Stolen Goods," the emotional dramatic success written by Margaret Turnbull and featuring Blanche Sweet and House Peters, proved a popular offering at the Liberty theater last night, a "full house" being on hand to welcome the return of Miss Sweet to the home of Paramount Pictures. "Stolen Goods" is billed as a "drama of justice and romance." There is considerable of the romantic but the justice is sadly lacking. As a matter of fact the story turns to a great extent upon the exact opposite.

Blanche Sweet is seen in the role of Margery Huntley, a poor girl wrongly imprisoned who later becomes a Red Cross nurse in Belgium. There she again meets the woman who has thrown the blame for a theft upon her and the story becomes one of exchanged identity.

House Peters is seen in the role of a Red Cross surgeon who learns to love the sympathetic little nurse and remains true to her in the fact of dark charges. Theodore Roberts as the German surgeon major is also at his best.

Life on the large European battlefield, in the hospitals, the shattered homes and all the many sad realities of the present war are strongly interwoven with this photo-dramatic offering.

"The Romance of Elaine" continues up to the standard of the previous "Elaine" offerings, the addition of Lionel Barrymore being a successful move on the part of the producers.

COLLEGE CHUM
EXPECTED AUNT

Delightful, tuneful "College Days" will start a three-day run at the Bijou theater tonight.

The Raymond Teal Musical Comedy Company with this performance will start its tenth change of program.

The production of "College Days"—the scenario and continuing, the music and acting—is worthy of more than casual mention. To it, Fritz Field is said to have brought all of his skill and taste and all of his experience with productions of this kind.

The story deals with the love affairs of Charley Chase, played by Homer Long and Amy Sprague, portrayed by Hazel Lake. The uncle of Amy objects to the marriage. Charley has an aunt whom he expects from Mexico. He also has a "shaggy" college chum, one Spud Wilson. Charley thinks it a good idea to get the old uncle interested in the aunt and by so doing gets his consent to marry Amy. The aunt sends a wire that she is detained. Charley then gets Spud to assume the role of aunt, and dresses him up for the occasion.

There are some real big numbers, the feature being "The Songs My Mother Used to Sing" accompanied by tableau pictures visualizing the various lines. Other musical numbers are added.

NEAR-PANIC AT NORMAL SCHOOL

DANCE SATURDAY

Last Saturday evening at the Normal School masquerade dance a fire broke out and almost started a panic.

Miss Drake, a teacher of the school, was relating a Halloween story to the audience. In order to make the audience have the impression that the facts of the story were really happening, the lights were all put out and a coal oil lamp substituted.

When about half way through the tale the lamp went dry of oil, and more was put in. The oil can was upset and oil spewed around the floor. In some unknown way the oil caught fire and for a time it looked as if the stage would go up in smoke. The male members of the gathering rushed up to the stage and extinguished the fire. A panic seemed likely as soon as the oil caught fire, but owing to the efforts of Edgar Wood, principal of the school, and several other individuals, was avoided. One of the guests' costumes caught fire, but it was immediately extinguished. After the excitement was over Miss Drake resumed her story.

TREATISE ON SOILS OF ISLANDS IS PUBLISHED

A treatise on the soils of the Hawaiian Islands is contained in a pamphlet recently issued from the government printing office in Washington, D. C., and which has just reached Honolulu. The authors of the treatise are W. P. Kelley, chemist, and William McGeorge and Alice R. Thompson, assistant chemists, with the local federal experiment station. The work was compiled under the supervision of the state relations service of the department of agriculture. Mr. Kelley also has written a report on "The Biochemical Decomposition of Nitrogenous Substances in Soils," copies of which have just reached here.
